Sergio is a young point guard with a high IQ.

His natural position is point guard, where he stands out as a great assistant and, above all, for his organisational skills. Technically he is a very gifted player. He is also capable of having a very good shot selection, standing out in three pointers.

He is a very reliable free-throw shooter. Offensively without the ball, he is very active, with back doors and indirect blocks to leave his teammates in good positions.

But what I can highlight the most about Gómez is his defense. His high intensity on the court infects his teammates, he is an excellent communicator, a leader at the back. He does an infinite amount of help, he is very active with his hands, he has good endurance in the 1 on 1...

In addition to all this, he always blocks the defensive rebound and is able to draw many fouls in attack when he stays with physically bigger players. Also, his IQ allows him to anticipate many defensive actions, which makes him steal a lot of balls and provoke turnovers from his opponents.

In short, Sergio is a team player who always helps his teammates and gives 100% in every training session and match, with a great desire to keep growing.
